Training:

Mathew Sewell is a Consultant Paediatric and Adult spinal deformity surgeon at The James Cook University Hospital in Middlesbrough, having undergone specialised spinal fellowship training in Stanmore, Exeter and Brisbane, Australia. He has represented the European Paediatric Orthopaedic Society (EPOS) and the British Orthopaedic Association (BOA) as an ambassador for UK spinal surgery, visiting South America and orthopaedic institutions of excellence in Austria, Switzerland and Germany (ASG). In addition to this, Mathew is proud to sit on the national UK committee for spinal surgery training as well as on the National Quality Standards Advisory Committee, holding the prestigious position of NICE scholar and making decisions affecting healthcare for patients throughout the whole of the NHS. Mathew has over 80 peer-reviewed publications in high quality medical journals, with current research interests relating to quality of life outcomes for children with neuromuscular conditions, scoliosis, spinal tumour and trauma, and spinal cord injury. In everything that he does, Mathew's passion and priority is in putting the patient first.
